

Busy Remembrance Weekend for Sawston Cadets

Cadets from 2461 (Sawston) Squadron of the Air Cadet Organisation had a busy remembrance weekend when the cadets from 2461 spent the Saturday morning selling poppies in the High Street where they raised an impressive £198 for the poppy appeal.

The Saturday afternoon was spent erecting tents on Huckeridge Hill in Sawston for Sawstons Firework display that evening where the cadets spent the evening marshalling at the firework display and members of staff and civilian committee members sold Hot Dogs to the crowds and raised an impressive £282 for squadron funds.

Remembrance Sunday saw the cadets at the squadron at 8:30 am to get ready for the two parades that the cadets were to perform the honour guard at that day. The cadets made their way to Sawston Village College for a short church service with the other youth groups and veterans in the village before parading down New Road, Hillside and the High Street to form around the cross in the village for a service of remembrance. They then paraded back to the village college from where they went on to their second remembrance parade of the day at the Imperial War Museum Duxford where they were lead by the Sawston Youth Group band.

Warrant Officer Tim Barker Officer Commanding 2461 Said “ It has been a very busy but rewarding weekend capped off by a number of ex air training corps and service personnel going out of their way to complement the squadron on its appearance and conduct”
