PRESS RELEASE

Master Cadet Flight Sergeant Lauren Dougherty, 17, of 207 (Cranfield) Squadron Air Cadets has just completed her A level in Communication and Culture Studies with the exam board AQA and obtained an A grade for the first year of the course.

Lauren chose to do her work on the Air Training Corps which included videoing events and Squadron activities as well as putting together a number of essays on how the ATC has changed her and how she has approached many challenges within the ATC.

The presentation, along with her two essays based on different subjects are to be published and copyrighted for use by teachers and future students taking the course and could take place in electronic forms such as on the AQA website and CD-ROM/DVD.

Lauren said 'I am very proud of what I have achieved but the icing on the cake is that my work will highlight the ATC's commitment to their policy on youth development'.

Flight Lieutenant Paul Weston Commanding Officer of 207 Squadron also commented on her achievement: 'Lauren has done an outstanding job on her work and should be congratulated on the success of her results and to see her work to be used to set the standards for other students to follow is high praise in itself'.
